Project Description

The objectives of the Urban Development Support Project for Afghanistan are to create an enabling policy framework and enhance urban policy making capacity in relevant agencies at the national level; and strengthen city planning, management and service delivery capacity in five Provincial Capital Cities (PCCs). There are five components to the project, the first component being urban information - building an urban management information system. This component will finance: (i) technical assistance to create the database and web architecture for the UMIS; (ii) design and implementation of surveys, and analysis of data gathered by municipalities; (iii) annual data updates as well as maintenance of hardware and software of the UMIS. The second component is the urban institutions: institutional and capacity development (US$4.50 million). This component will finance: (a) implementation of an Urban Planning Functional review of the urban planning functions and capacities of MUDH and other relevant agencies, as well as the planning functions and capacities under the participating PCCs, and the preparation of an Action Plan for technical assistance to be supported by UDSP over the course of its three-year implementation period. The third component is the urban integration: strengthening urban planning at national and local levels. This component will integrate urban planning and development, supported by technical consultancies, goods, and information technology-related hardware and software, including training, for: (1) development of curriculum for urban planning practitioners; and (2) preparation of local Strategic Development Plans (SDPs) at the five PCCs, taking into account an inventory of existing planning and land use conditions, land use efficiency and service provision.
